Trip Abandoned.

It was announced early that the President would modify his plans as to outdent would modify his plans as to outof-town trips next week. He will go to Passalc Monday morning and get back here Tuesday morning. But he will abandon the trip to Brooklyn May 12, when he expected to be at the launching of the battleship Florida.

If the President holds firmly to the position that the bill as it stands in the Senate is a measure which bught to be passed, it will probably mean not only that there will be railroad legislation, but legislation that will strengthen the power of the Government. With the President taking such a position, it will not be easy to sidetrack the bill in conference.
